

Carnegie Mellon

College of Fine Arts Events

April 6-13

- Tues., April 8
McConomy Auditorium
- 5 p.m. Art — Swoon, a Brooklyn-based street artist, lectures. Swoon’s galleries are city walls, often in the environments that inspired the prints. She founded the Toyshop Collective and worked with them on poster campaigns, billboard alterations and sculptural installations. Swoon’s next project is Braddock Active Arts, a community art center in an abandoned church in Braddock, Pa., meant to catalyze community revitalization through art.
- Wed., April 9
American Jewish Museum
- 7 p.m. Art — Join the artists of “Making Hope Happen” for a discussion of their work. Read about the exhibit at www.jccpgh.org/Museum.asp#CurrentExhibitions.
- Wed., April 9
Kresge Recital Hall
- 8 p.m. Music — Guitarist Sam Chien gives his senior recital.
- Thurs., April 10
Outside the University Center
The Cut
- 1 p.m. Drama — The School of Drama takes Commedia Dell’ Arte out of the theater and to outdoors locations at Carnegie Mellon, Station Square, Hartwood Acres Park and the SouthSide Works. They’ll perform adaptations set in 1930s Pittsburgh of two comedic plays, “Servant of Two Masters” and “Scapino.” Visit www.cmu.edu/cfa/drama/ for a complete performance schedule.
- 6:30 p.m.
- Sat., April 12
Frick Auditorium (next to the Carnegie Library)
- 4 p.m. Music — Faculty member Donna Amato re-premieres a forgotten piano sonata by Giacinto Scelsi. Music scholar and head of the BHA/BSA programs Franco Sciannameo gives a lecture.
- Sat., April 12
